Problem

Nevertheless, a lot of individuals are afraid of using online and mobile dating services as a result of such problems as lack of privacy and relationship unfairness (inherent to centralized systems). However, dating is an intimate experience and developers are operating to resolve these issues guaranteeing users' advantages of using an app will overcome the danger perceptions with uneven progress made, anyways.

Whereas a centralized platform needs the maximum amount of info as possible in order to optimize the matching process of participants with additional data points resulting in higher possibilities of generating qualified matches, users additionally expose more information based on the trust that they will get better results.

Furthermore, spam problems (zero value for messaging) and bots/fake profiles (identity verification) are deeply intrinsic in legacy dating apps.

Solution

With this in mind, blockchain technology can help make dating safer and more effective, which is why a transparent and decentralized dating app called Dating was launched. dtngtoken.com uses the blockchain to create a network with an underlying token economy that creates incentives for individual users and good community behavior.

The confidentiality of user information is secured through the use of a decentralized database (initially BSC blockchain) in which all data is protected by encryption.

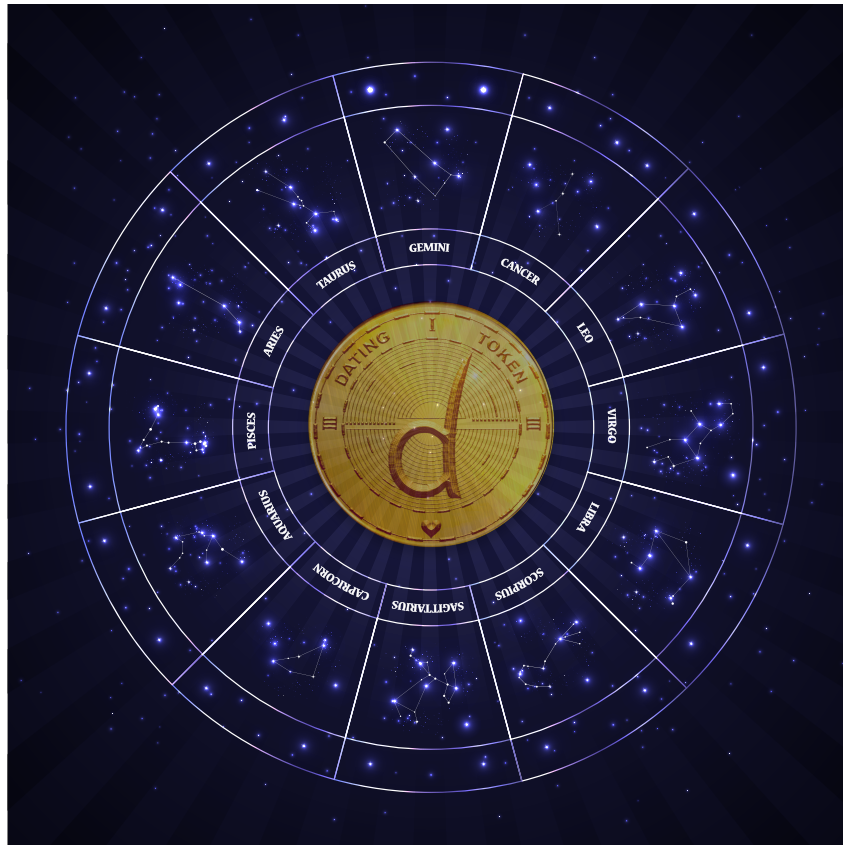

Messages are private and users pay microtransactions for interactions, which limits spam. The verification works by two factors building a biometric identification process that combines voice and facial scans and matching. This effectively prevents the use of bots and at the same time creates a network of trustworthy participants.

Dating token is going to be a payment method on few dating platforms including its own platform, which is on a development stage.

Zodiac Sign Compatibility

Each individual has a zodiac sign based on moon divergence and planet selection. In this zodiac system, the influence of our normal signs, sun sign and rising sign is at a very dominant level.

Many individuals who are interested or not interested in the horoscope have always looked at the horoscope interpretation at least once out of curiosity. Although horoscopes do not make sense to some individuals, there are many individuals who research and follow interplanetary energies. The most followed and researched subject about zodiac signs is compatibility between zodiac signs. Which zodiac sign can be compatible with which zodiac sign? The Dating Platform will be able to show you whether there is a horoscope compatibility between you and your partner. Those who want to use this feature will pay with a certain number of tokens.
